Convenience is being plagued by staff shortages and worries over stock availability. It's safe to say that, while wholesalers have their work cut out for them, they stand ready to meet this challenge in Scotland. In this feature, we will look at what Scotland's wholesalers have to offer the convenience market to ensure retailers have the partnership they need. We would welcome comments on the following:

- What services do you offer in delivered wholesale or cash & carry? What improvements have you made to your offer over the last 12 months? Investment in depot? New product ranges? Expanded food to go/chilled? Changes to ordering/delivery processes?
- What steps have been taken to maintain availability as best as possible under the pressures of the economic crisis? What sort of levels have you been able to maintain across key categories for convenience? How important are strong supplier relationships when it comes to maintaining the supply chain in challenging times?
- What do you think sets your business apart from the competition in Scotland? What's your USP? Why should Scottish convenience retailers consider giving you their business? Beyond competitive pricing, what additional support can you offer convenience retailers?
- Have you made any significant technological developments in the last 12 months? If so, what are they and how do they benefit your c-store retailer customers? Are there any developments in your symbol/fascia/retail club that you think retailers should be aware of?
- What approach are you taking to improving your firm's environmental credentials? What sustainability goals are you working towards? What steps have you taking so far?
- Do you offer a range of own-branded goods to convenience retailers?

- Do you have any upcoming NPD, events, campaigns or tradeshow that you would like to shout about?
